PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

pring? There will be Spring, right? I only ask because 10 inches of snow in March is kinda' weird. For St. Louis, anyway.

But it certainly feels like Spring aside from the weather cause we're whipping up a frenzy of preparations for Costume-Con just like every Spring. Costume-Con 26 is in late April so that gives us a little more Spring than usual before we have to be done, which is nice. So here's the plan:

1. Attend Costume-Con 26 in San Jose, CA. See all your friends, attend panels, see the shows, be in the shows, go home & dream of next year.

2. While at CC26 - go to the ICG Annual Meeting. Yep, that's right, your yearly opportunity to see the ICG Board of Directors live and in person. They're not just a myth, they really exist - come see how cool they are (or not). Come see if your Chapter rep actually shows up to represent your interests. Harangue them later if they don't.

3. While at the ICG Annual Meeting - vote. You get to vote on who serves on the Corporate Board for the next year as well as any other exciting agenda items. If you can't make it the meeting, send your voting proxy with your representative (someone who will be there). You can print off a copy from the ICG website or get one from your local rep or newsletter editor.

4. After the meeting go and enjoy the con, I guarantee it will be more fun than the meeting. But having attended the meeting you can feel smugly good about yourself because you made the effort to be part of the process.

And if you're going to be at Costume-Con 26, I want to meet you. Come up and say "hi" when you see me. If you don't see me (I will be there), look for me. Don't be shy, don't assume I'm too busy to talk to you, don't think I'm not interested - I am interested. Or if we've met before, come up and say "hey" again. Keep your expectations suitably low, however, I'm horrible with names - I'll probably recognize your face, though.

So that's it for now - I have to get back to the sewing machine/spray paint/shoe dye; it ain't gonna' get done on it's own!

EDITOR'S MESSAGE

Famous Closing Lines:

"Don't touch that red button!"

"Mommy, what does D-E-T-O-N-A-T-O-R spell?"

"So, you're a cannibal."

"Are you sure the power is off?"

It's been a true joy heading the team for the last two and a half years that has ensured that the newsletter remains a jewel, alongside the amazing archives collection, in the crown of the International Costumers Guild. The cool people I've had a chance to meet (and hit up for articles), the layout and editing lessons I've learned (Fun With Semicolons), the embarrassing photos I've had the opportunity to publish of family and dear friends ...

But this is it. Like all other good things, my tenure as editor of the ICG Newsletter is at an end. My life has been running merrily along in the background for the last couple of years. But after a few fun-filled years of putting together the ICC newsletter on a six-times yearly basis, it's now time for me to get back to costuming, my nascent freelance journalism career, and my loving family.

On my way out, however, let me take this opportunity to send thanks to just a few of the many people who've made my tenure as Editor the success it has been: Betsy Delaney; Richard Man, Nora Mai, Linda Wenzelburger, Kevin Roche, Andrew Trembley, Trystan Bass, Carole Par;ker (haha!), Carl Mami, Frances Burns, Aurora Celeste, Henry Osier, Byron Connell, Bruce and Dana MacDermott, the ICG-D list, our advertisers, and any and all other writers who so kindly sent content for the newsletter. And especially of course to Jay, whose hard work and efforts editing me, writing articles, and often serving as the other half of the Official ICG Newsletter Mailing Committee, were crucial to getting the beast out, issue after issue for the last two years. (Note: If your name is not on the list, and it should be, please take as consolation that I just love you too much, and given how steamy our relationship has become over the last 6 and a half years, I wasn't sure you wanted it publicized and your spouse/cat/priest finding out about us. That, or it's late and I've had wine and fell asleep mid-list. Also, this list is in no particular order, whether ranking or otherwise. That having been said, please feel free to send a letter of complaint re same to the new editor along with your article submission.)

So there. I'm going now. Really this time, I mean it. Thanks a ton everyone. And remember:

SUBMIT EARLY, SUBMIT OFTEN!!!!

(And remember to look both ways when crossing the street.)
